

Associate Minister for Congregational Care at First-Plymouth Congregational, UCC in Lincoln, Nebraska.

The Minister for Congregational Care at First-Plymouth Congregational Church will have the delightful duty to provide loving attention to persons. Some of the core responsibilities include - Providing pastoral care: supporting members during challenging and joyful times, building relationships and responding to needs, and connecting members to ministries. Ministering to the needs of older adults: Addressing particular care and connection needs, arranging ongoing programs for active seniors, encouraging intergenerational participation when appropriate. Fostering a wide array of care teams: for example, hospital visitation, prayer requests, response for immediate needs, communion at home, and visitation and relationships in a variety of living arrangements. Coordinating and communicating: developing systems for sharing appropriate information, maintaining an excellent working relationship with co-workers. Serving as part of pastoral team for entire church and equipping our church for ministry entails organizing and leading a community of care when individual members are in need due to major changes in life circumstances.

Basically, we are looking for a minister who wakes up in the morning and immediately wonders "Who needs some love and care today?" and "How can the church surround each person with compassion?"

Learn more about First-Plymouth by visiting www.firstplymouth.org. To inquire about the position contact Rev. Dr. Jim Keck, Senior Minister at jim@firstplymouth.org, or send your resume and cover letter to First-Plymouth Church, 2000 D Street, Lincoln, NE 68502.